This is the finest publication we have read through right up until now. Better than ever, though I am quite late in starting to read this one. It has been written in a remarkably easy way in fact it is only after I finished reading through this book that I basically altered me, affected the way I think.

The title of the book is 'Baby Noeyes' and it was first published in 1998. Both novels deal with resistance and social change and we can find representations of strong Maori having a positive influence on their family and their environment. The main struggles with effects of colonialism and imperialism after the English settlers arrived are topics in both books. The main characters Te Paania and Beth Heke seem to be very different at the beginning, but both represent the ideal of a Maori women, being a leader and a warrior. In the next chapters I want to give a short introduction to the social status of Maori women in New Zealand before the colonization and after the English settlers arrived. Then I will compare the characters of Beth Heke from the novel 'Once were Warriors' and Te Paania from the novel 'Baby Noeyes'. I want to focus mainly on their struggles and the finding of solutions for their own wellbeing and the wellbeing of their family. Finally, in the last...
