University of Virginia Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 81 pages. Dimensions: 9.8in. x 8.4in. x 0.2in. LIKE MONTICELLO, Thomas Jeffersons Poplar Forest offers a significant archeological view of slave life at the turn of the nineteenth century in rural Virginia. In Hidden Lives, Barbara J. Heath re-creates the daily life of slaves at Jeffersons second home from 1773, the year he inherited the plantation, until 1812, when his reorganization of its landscape resulted in the destruction of a slave quarter. Drawing on census data, letters, memoranda, and other primary material, Heath describes the slave communitys family ties, the agricultural cycle of work, and the sickness and health care they experienced. Her portrait is enhanced by fresh archaeological findings and a wealth of illustrations, including site and contemporary maps, . . . images of slaves at work and at home, artifacts, and interpretive drawings. By looking at the social meaning of buildings, yards, and artifacts, Heath presents new interpretations of how individuals used materials to create a sense of self and community, how they acquired belongings, and how they safeguarded them. For visitors to historic sites and students and scholars of archaeology, Heaths book offers a visual and textual exploration of complex relationships within the plantation and of the resulting choices, compromises, and limitations that Jeffersons slaves negotiated in the process of making a home within the confines of institutionalized slavery.
