Physiological analysis reveals the toxicity of the urine, at the time of the crisis, to depend upon different poisons, little known from a chemical point of view. Schutz, under orders from the Prussian government, has been experimenting on cattle, by inoculating them with warm lymph from the lungs of cattle suffering from inflammation of the lungs. He found such inoculation afforded immunity from the infectious inflammation. Netter relates the case of a woman who gave birth to a child when she was very ill with acute pneumonia. The child lived five days, and at the post-mortem examination, pneumonia at the apex of the right lung was found with double pleurisy, suppurative pericarditis and cerebro-spinal meningitis. A microscopic examination showed pneumococci. The rarity of pneumonia at this age, supports the conclusion that in this case it was due to infection from the mother. A similar infection of the f...
